

28th European Conference on Psychosomatic Research (ECPR)

The '28th European Conference on Psychosomatic Research' will take place in Innsbruck on July 2–3, 2010. The theme of the conference will be 'Psychosomatic Medicine in Different Medical Settings – From Basic Care to Specialization'. The congress follows the 'Annual Meeting of the European Society of Consultation-Liaison Psychiatry and Psychosomatics' with the same conference goals: bio-psycho-social aspects of medical care in different settings – from primary care to specialization. Worldwide high-technically oriented medicine is expanding to its financial and ethical limits. As a counterpart, psychosocial and psychosomatic care is a necessary way to foster the health of doctors, therapists and patients. The topics of the congress cover the following areas: psychosomatic aspects in primary care, cardiology, oncology, gastroenterology, gynecology, fertility medicine, dermatology, neurobiology, genetics, quality assurance and psychotherapy. Symposia, plenary lectures, clinical courses and poster sessions will open a forum for discussion of research and clinical reality.

Members of the International College of Psychosomatic Medicine will have a reduced registration fee.

We invite all to join in fruitful dialogue in Innsbruck.

Gerhard Schüssler, Congress President
Stefan Höfer, Congress Secretary
